NAZI BOMBING PLANES ATTACK ICELAND

BRITISH END RELATIONS WITH ROMANIA

Churchill Cheers English; Warships Bombard Genoa

AMERICAN MEN NOT NECESSARY, SAYS MINISTER

More Arms Required For Isles To Carry On War; Italian Base Blasted

LONDON, Feb. 10—All Britain was cheered today by Prime Minister Winston Churchill's radio speech, in which he declared Britain does not need American soldiers to defeat the axis and hinted the British bombardment of Genoa foiled a Nazi plan to invade French North Africa.

Churchill's declaration that Britain will not require American expeditionary troops to defeat Germany and Italy was coupled with a charge that Nazi armed forces already have entered Bulgaria.

But the prime minister declared that Britain, as a result of American material aid and British victories in Africa, is ready to meet a new axis assault in the Balkans or anywhere else.

His speech coincided with announcement by the admiralty that British warships early yesterday hurled more than 300 tons of shells into Italy's northwest naval port of Genoa.

Churchill amplified the admiralty's communiqué by stating: "Our western Mediterranean

ROME, Feb. 10—A British naval squadron bombed the Italian port of Genoa Sunday killing 72 persons and wounding 226, the Italian high command announced today. The war bulletin said the shelling caused extensive damage, and added that enemy planes bombed Leghorn and Pisa.

fleets under (Sir James) Somerville, entered the Gulf of Genoa and bombarded in a shattering manner the naval base from which perhaps a Nazi German expedition might soon have sailed to attack General Weygand in Algeria or Tunis."

Great Damage Done

The admiralty statement on the Genoa bombardment said the vital Italian seaport's main fuel tanks, chief power station and other objectives, including supply ships in the harbor, were damaged and set on fire.

Churchill in his address expressed hope that the "cannonading of Genoa" may have reached the ears of "our French comrades" and may "cheer them with the feeling that active friends are near and that Britannia rules the waves." Authorities declared the attack on Genoa was the "war's most tremendous naval bombardment by heavy attacks by British naval bombers on the Leghorn oil refinery."

CLARK CHARGES CHURCHILL TRIES TO WIN SUPPORT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—Sen. Clark, (D) Mo., a leader of the non-intervention bloc in the senate, today declared that the speech of Prime Minister Churchill of England yesterday, was intended to be testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee now holding hearings on President Roosevelt's lease-lend bill to aid Britain.

Clark, in questioning a witness before the committee, referred to Churchill's speech, and said rather than a speech Churchill's statements were "intended to be testimony before this committee," accusing Churchill indirectly of trying to influence U. S. senate deliberations.

Minister, Other Members Of Legation To Leave Bucharest At Once

MOVE LONG EXPECTED

German Hold On Country Tighter; Blackouts Of Cities Decreed

LONDON, Feb. 10 — Great Britain has severed diplomatic relations with Nazi-dominated Romania, it was learned in authoritative quarters this afternoon.

(Editor's Note: Military experts have long predicted British bombardment of the vital Romanian oil fields if Romanian military collaboration with Germany continues.)

British Minister Sir Reginald Hoare and other members of the legation staff are expected to leave Bucharest shortly for London.

Sir Reginald, it was learned, advised his government that the moment had arrived when it was no longer useful for him to remain in Bucharest.

He is now clearing up pending business preparatory to leaving the Romanian capital.

No Surprise Noted

The report caused no surprise in informed quarters where it was long been known that relations have deteriorated to the point where their breaking could be accomplished at any time.

Most of the British embassy staff withdrew long ago and Sir Reginald has been conducting almost a one-man job against ever-increasing difficulties as the German hold on the country became more and more complete, these quarters said.

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS RIGHTS TO HALT PICKETS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—In a five to three decision which split New Deal appointees, the Supreme Court today ruled that states can enjoin picketing in labor disputes where peaceful picketing is interlarded with violence.

It upheld a State Supreme Court injunction against the Chicago Milk Wagon Drivers Union, prohibiting it from picketing stores selling "cut-rate" milk despite the union protest that the ruling violated federal guarantees of free speech.

Britain Loses Pig Iron Supply; Boat Overturns

LEWES, Del., Feb. 10—Forty-seven seamen were rescued and another was missing and believed lost today when the 5,800-ton British freighter Ramon De Larrinaga, loaded with a vital war cargo for Britain, capsized two miles off-shore in Delaware breakwater.

The heavily-laden vessel was beached last night after being towed to the comparative safety of the lower Delaware Bay by coast guard cutters which went to her assistance after an SOS appeal Friday night.

Her main deck was awash and she was listing at a perilous 30-degree angle when she was run aground in 18 feet of water in "the harbor of refuge" off Lewes. Through the night, the freighter withstood the buffeting of the choppy seas until she was capsized by the rising tide shortly before dawn. As the vessel rolled over, her crew scurried over the side.

The side of the ship remained protruding out of the wind-lashed

Both Of Woman's Arms Fractured As Auto Hits Tree; Companion Injured

Miss Florence Birchfield, Greenfield, In "Fair" Condition After Accident On Route 23; Automobile Demolished

A car crashed into a tree four miles south of Circleville on Route 23 Sunday night about 10:30 sending the driver, John Henry Vogel, 147 Plum Street, Chillicothe, and his companion, Miss Florence Birchfield, Greenfield, to Berger Hospital, Vogel with head injuries and Miss Birchfield with both arms fractured and other cuts and bruises.

Deputy Sheriff Earl Weaver said Vogel was traveling north when for no apparent reason his car, a 1934 Plymouth coupe, left the road, struck a tree which stood about 10 feet from the right edge berm, bounded across the road and finally stopped right-side-up at the left edge of the pavement. The car was demolished.

First to arrive at the scene of the accident was George Palmer of Chillicothe who told Deputy Weaver that both Vogel and Miss Birchfield were in the car when he arrived. Vogel, who was unconscious, was pulled from the car and placed at the edge of the road.

Believing Miss Birchfield more in need of immediate attention, Palmer took her to Berger Hospital in his car. The Rinehart ambulance picked up Vogel a short time later and took him to the hospital.

Hit Windshield

Both were believed to have been injured when they were thrown against the windshield as the car struck the tree. The car was enroute to Columbus.

Hospital authorities said Monday that Miss Birchfield's condition was "fair." Vogel was released Sunday night after being treated for lacerations about the head.

No other traffic accidents were reported during the week end, road conditions being generally favorable throughout the county with only traces of snow on secondary roads. Main routes 23, 22, 104 and 56 were dry, highway officials said.

One drunken driver was listed among the week end arrests. He was Ralph Nida, Pinckney Street, arrested on South Court Street by Deputy Sheriff Weaver. Justice of Peace B. T. Hedges fined him $100 and costs, which he made arrangements to pay, and was released.

Five Tickets Issued

Traffic Officer Miller Fissell reported five tickets issued Saturday afternoon and Sunday for overtime double parking on West Main Street.

BERLIN, Feb. 10—Long-distance bombing planes of the German air force machine-gunned a British Royal Air Force base near Reykjavik, Iceland, yesterday, damaging a number of fighting planes on the ground, it was announced in Berlin today.

Indicating the raid on Britain's North Atlantic fortress was extremely significant, informed quarters said the attacks "brought valuable reconnaissance results."

Other warplanes, blasting at Britain's coastal shipping, crippled a British patrol vessel off Peterhead and attacked Great Yarmouth, Ipswich Harbor and Norwich yesterday, these quarters added.

LONDON, Feb. 10 — While Germany announced a machine-gun raid on a British air base in Iceland, the Royal Air Force today carried out another "offensive sweep" against Dunkirk and Boulogne, on the English Channel.

HARRY HOPKINS LEAVES LONDON FOR TRIP HOME

LONDON, Feb. 10—Harry Hopkins, President Roosevelt's personal envoy, has concluded his mission in England and "has returned to the United States," the American embassy in London announced today.

Later it was stated reliably in London that Hopkins secretly took off from London for Lisbon by plane this morning.

(Editor's Note: Juan T. Trippe, president of Pan American Airways, said yesterday that Hopkins probably would leave Lisbon for New York today aboard the Yankee Clipper. Trippe said Hopkins had been expected to arrive in Lisbon late yesterday afternoon.)

Hopkins was known to have been in London last Friday. It was assumed he departed from the British capital sometime Saturday or Sunday.

Some London quarters thought he might reach the United States today.

WIRING CAUSES DAMAGE

Ren Mumaw, East Mound Street, called the fire department Monday at 9:30 a. m. when he stepped into his car parked in East Mill Street, turned on the ignition and saw smoke pouring from beneath the hood. The fire, caused by a short in the wiring, caused no damage, firemen reported.

WILLKIE WORKS ON STATEMENT

U. S. Can Escape War By Aiding Britain, Says G.O.P. Chieftain

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—Taking the opposite viewpoint of elder leaders of his party, Wendell Willkie was convinced today that only by aiding Britain has the United States a chance of avoiding war.

Willkie, who returned yesterday from London over an experimental Pan-American Airways route, was working today on a statement to be read before the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee on Tuesday and which will explain his position on the lease-lend bill.

That statement probably will:

1. Recommend passage of the bill with a time limit on the presidential powers.
2. Oppose use of American ships for transfer or convoy of war supplies.
3. Oppose transfer of any armament or materials already in use by the United States forces.
4. Recommend speeding up of production and manufacture of arms and materials with possibly some new designs based on British standards. (Canada is now the only supplier of Bren guns outside of Britain.)

BRITISH MOP UP NEAR BENGAZI, ARREST GENERAL

CAIRO, Feb. 10—Gen. Annibale (Electric Whiskers) Berganzoli, elusive Italian corps commander, a Fascist army chief, five senior generals and many thousands more prisoners have been captured around British-occupied Bengazi, it was announced in Cairo today.

Mopping up operations continued south of Bengazi while British imperial armored units sped deeper into the west against Tripolitans, seizing the fortified desert town of El Aghella.

British authorities described El Aghella as the last "civilized village" on the road to Tripoli from Bengazi. From that point, it was stated, the Anglo-Australian forces confront a 300-mile stretch of desert to the west, with only three or four suitable watering places.

Meanwhile, additional information reaching Cairo showed the disaster suffered by the Italian at Bengazi was a major one. An official British communiqué said that "owing to the extent of the area covered by our final operation, it will be some time before the exact number of prisoners and the amount of war materials can be assessed."

DRAFT BOARD'S DECREES UPHELD BY APPEAL UNIT

Officials at the Selective Service Board office, Monday, announced that two more decisions of the local board had been upheld by the board of appeals.

The first appeal was made on the grounds of dependency, the registrant, a farmer, claiming dependency on the grounds that he and his father are sharecroppers and his father and mother are dependent on him to help maintain the home.

The second appeal was made on similar grounds. Both appellants were placed in Class 1-A by the local board.

The appeal board has upheld two other decisions of the local board, having reversed none.

Minister, Other Members Of Legation To Leave Bucharest At Once

Nazi-occupied country was no longer tenable, British Minister Sir Reginald Hoare today asked for his passport, severing diplomatic relations between Great Britain and Romania.

(Editor's Note: A short while afterward, German authorities in Romania ordered nightly blackouts in Bucharest and other large cities and distributed candles to the civilian population for use in emergencies, according to a British radio broadcast picked up by NBC in New York.)

Neutral observers in Bucharest were not surprised by Britain's action. There was keen speculation as to whether some major war move by Britain was in the offing. These observers recalled recent reports that Britain had threatened to bomb military objectives in Bulgaria if King Boris permitted passage of German troops.

It was generally assumed that some similar precondition played a part in the British minister's action.

of the Lewes Station, directed rescue work as the freighter's crew, nearly frozen by 40-minute exposure to the biting winds and spraying sea, slid down the vessel's side into the small coast-guard boats. Several were taken to Beebe Hospital in this community for treatment, including one who received a broken leg.

The Ramon De Larrinaga ran into trouble 75 miles off Atlantic City, N. J., Friday night when his cargo, believed to be pig iron destined for the armament mills of England, began shifting in mountainous waves whipped up by heavy weather.

The cutter Mohawk and two 75-foot patrol boats sped to her assistance after the vessel's captain wirelessed the Cap May Point coast guard station. As she was towed toward Delaware Bay, wave after wave sloshed tons of seawater into her hold and she settled deeper and her list to port grew sharper.

After efforts to right the cargo failed at the breakwater, orders were issued to beach her. Salvage operations were to have started this morning.

AMERICAN MEN NOT NECESSARY, SAYS MINISTER

Churchill, said Britain needs "most urgently an immense and continuous supply of war materials" and ships to transport them from the United States. He added: "We do not need the gallant armies that are forming throughout the American union. We do not need them this year nor next year nor any year that I can foresee."

He pointed to the difference in character between this war and the World War when 2,000,000 American fighting men were shipped across the Atlantic. He said 4,000,000 well-armed men now stand guard in the British Isles, prepared to resist a German invasion attempt which, Churchill warned, may be imminent.

But the prime minister devoted a considerable part of his address to the Genoa attack, which the admiral termed "very heavy" and "highly successful."

300 Tons Fired

Later the admiral issued a second communique which said more than 300 tons of shells were fired during the bombardment and added:

"The Ansaldo electric boiler works were heavily hit and set afire. The main power station was severely damaged and set afire. Genoa's main fuel oil tanks were repeatedly hit, as well as supply ships and the principal railway yard."

Several tons of explosive bombs and large numbers of incendiaries were dropped by our naval aircraft on the Leghorn oil refinery and the Pisa airdrome and railway junction."

(Indicating severe damage to transportation lines, a Rome report yesterday said provincial newspapers from northern Italy, normally available in Rome in the early afternoon, failed to arrive in the Italian capital Sunday night.)

During the air attacks, carried out by planes from the British aircraft carrier Ark Royal, two intercepting Italian fighting planes were shot down, while one British Swordfish plane was lost.

Among the ships participating in the attack of Genoa were the 34,700-ton battle cruiser Renown, the 35,100-ton battleship Malaya, the 9,100-ton cruiser Sheffield, the Ark Royal and smaller vessels such as light cruisers and destroyers. The British naval squadron suffered no damage or casualties beyond the loss of one fleet air arm plane and members of its crew.

Roman Empire Falling

Churchill cited the "shattering" of Genoa as a prelude to the approaching "decline and fall of the Roman Empire" of Premier Mussolini. As for Il Duce, Churchill quoted a verse from Byron about "those pagon things of sabre-sway with fronts of brass and feet of clay."

The prime minister proclaimed that Italy's military might in Africa already has been broken and dealt with Germany as the real and immediate danger to Britain. But he promised that the Royal Air Force would soon drop three tons of bombs on Germany for every ton dropped by the Nazis on Britain.

Indicating his belief that Hitler soon may try to smash through Bulgaria toward Greece and the Dardanelles, Churchill said the Reich already has established bases in Bulgaria and accused Bulgaria of permitting this.

of the Lewes Station, directed rescue work as the freighter's crew, nearly frozen by 40-minute exposure to the biting winds and spraying sea, slid down the vessel's side into the small coast-guard boats. Several were taken to Beebe Hospital in this community for treatment, including one who received a broken leg.

The Ramon De Larrinaga ran into trouble 75 miles off Atlantic City, N. J., Friday night when her cargo, believed to be pig iron destined for the armament mills of England, began shifting in mountainous waves whipped up by heavy weather.

The cutter Mohawk and two 75-foot patrol boats sped to her assistance after the vessel's captain wirelessly the Cap May Point coast guard station. As she was towed toward Delaware Bay, wave after wave sloshed tons of seawater into her hold and she tilted deeper and her list to port grew sharper.

After efforts to right the cargo failed at the breakwater, orders were issued to beach her. Salvage operations were to have started this morning.

AMERICAN MEN NOT NECESSARY, SAYS MINISTER

ery and the airdrome and rail junction at Pisa, south of Genoa.

Churchill, said Britain needs "most urgently an immense and continuous supply of war materials" and ships to transport them from the United States. He added: "We do not need the gallant armies that are forming throughout the American union. We do not need them this year nor next year nor any year that I can foresee."

He pointed to the difference in character between this war and the World War when 2,000,000 American fighting men were shipped across the Atlantic. He said 4,000,000 well-armed men now stand guard in the British Isles, prepared to resist a German invasion attempt which, Churchill warned, may be imminent.

But the prime minister devoted a considerable part of his address to the Genoa attack, which the admiral termed "very heavy" and "highly successful."

300 Tons Fired

Later the admiral issued a second communique which said more than 300 tons of shells were fired during the bombardment and added:

"The Ansaldo electric boiler works were heavily hit and set afire. The main power station was severely damaged and set afire. Genoa's main fuel oil tanks were repeatedly hit, as well as supply ships and the principal railway yard."

Several tons of explosive bombs and large numbers of incendiaries were dropped by our naval aircraft on the Leghorn oil refinery and the Pisa airdrome and railway junction."

(Indicating severe damage to transportation lines, a Rome report yesterday said provincial newspapers from northern Italy, normally available in Rome in the early afternoon, failed to arrive in the Italian capital Sunday night.)

During the air attacks, carried out by planes from the British aircraft carrier Ark Royal, two intercepting Italian fighting planes were shot down, while one British Swordfish plane was lost.

Among the ships participating in the attack of Genoa were the 34,700-ton battle cruiser Renown, the 35,100-ton battleship Malaya, the 9,100-ton cruiser Sheffield, the Ark Royal and smaller vessels such as light cruisers and destroyers. The British naval squadron suffered no damage or casualties beyond the loss of one fleet air arm plane and members of its crew.

Roman Empire Falling

Churchill cited the "shattering" of Genoa as a prelude to the approaching "decline and fall of the Roman Empire" of Premier Mussolini. As for Il Duce, Churchill quoted a verse from Byron about "those pagan things of sabre-sway with fronts of brass and feet of clay."

The prime minister proclaimed that Italy's military might in Africa already has been broken and dealt with Germany as the real and immediate danger to Britain.

But he promised that the Royal Air Force would soon drop three tons of bombs on Germany for every ton dropped by the Nazis on Britain.

Indicating his belief that Hitler soon may try to smash through Bulgaria toward Greece and the Dardanelles, Churchill said the Reich already has established bases in Bulgaria and accused Bulgaria of permitting this.

In Film Case

ALLEGING that she was portrayed in a very unfavorable manner in the motion picture, "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," Kate Moog has sued Warner Brothers, Inc., Hollywood film producers, for $75,000 damages in New York. Miss Moog, then known as Kate Busch, was a government witness in the Nazi spy trial in New York in 1938. Miss Moog charged that Lya Lys, above, an actress appearing in the picture, played a role fashioned after her.

lend-lease bill is little changed from the position he took just before he went to London. He describes it himself as only "modified."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Administration friends of the lend-lease bill in the senate are planning to offer a series of modifying amendments to avert possibility of a rising tide of opposition and assure passage by a thumping vote, congressional leaders disclosed today.

The measure, which was passed by the House by a vote of 260 to 165 late Saturday, may reach the senate floor for historic debate next Monday.

Youth To Speak Concerning
Movement; Big Program
Being Planned

Circleville's four Eagle Scouts, David Orr, David Yates, Carl Bach and Harry Clifton, have been invited by Governor John W. Bricker to attend a Boy Scout Week meeting in Columbus, Tuesday, to meet with the legislative bodies of the state as a citizenship project in connection with national observance of the Week. The thirty-first anniversary of scouting is being celebrated.

Orr, member of Troop 158, will be spokesman with Scout Tom Dutro of Marysville Troop 101 for their fellow scouts in the Senate and House, respectively. Each will deliver a brief address on Scouting after being introduced by Lieutenant-Governor Paul Herbert, speaker of the senate, and Rep. William McCullough, speaker of the house.

This opportunity to observe the workings of the state government at close hand was conceived by the governor, long active in scout work, who terms the project a "Civic Adventure." In a letter from Governor Bricker to presidents of twenty-eight Scout Councils in Ohio he said, "In line with the program of the Boy Scout movement to strengthen and invigorate democracy, it has occurred to us that the state government of Ohio should make an emphatic demonstration of its regard and support for this movement on the occasion of its anniversary celebration." He advocated it as a "worthwhile educational experience."

Clerks Cooperate

Clerks of the two legislative bodies, Thomas E. Bateman, of the senate, and Otis R. Johnson, of the house of representatives, are cooperating with scout officials in planning Tuesday's affair. Scouts will meet legislators from their particular senatorial or congressional districts and witness their deliberation when they convene at 1:30 p. m. Thirty-six boys will meet with the senate and 138 boys will meet with the representatives, with all part of Ohio being represented.

Greeters and hosts who will meet the out-of-town scouts when they arrive at 9 a. m. at the State Office Building Tuesday will be local Boy Scout honor campers who are members of the Kati-nonkwat Lodge, Order of the Arrow.

After a brief orientation session in the main hearing room at the State Office Building, the assembled scouts will proceed to the State Capitol, where they will be welcomed by Governor Bricker and Lt. Gov. Herbert. Following this there will be a ceremony at the monument to the Unknown Scout on the State House lawn. Here a wreath will be placed in memory of the founder of scouting, Lord Robert Baden-Powell, who died last month. Six scouts will participate in a radio program at the Leshler-Wallick Hotel broadcast by Station WHKC.

Justice To Speak

Before meeting with the legislative bodies in the afternoon, Chief Justice Carl V. Weygant will speak to the boys when they visit the State Supreme Court while in session.

For Monday, February 10

MONDAY'S astrological forecast may be a conflicting one, with augury for very active and promising conditions; probably of a public, group, political or fraternal nature, yet there is also a probability of loss, litigation, improvidence or other undermining of the fortunes.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year of opportunity and expansion, possibly in some public or community capacity, where advancement and recognition await. However, there is portent of loss through extravagance, or indulgence.

A child born on this day should be clever, ambitious and competent but may defeat its best interest.

COUNCIL MEET SMOOT, FAMOUS WITH ELECTRIC MORMON, FORMER MEN SCHEDULED SENATOR, DEAD

Officials of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company will meet with City Council in a special session Wednesday evening to discuss measures for reducing cost of city street lighting.

Light company officials are expected to present the council with figures showing present costs of street lighting and the estimated amount that might be saved by reducing all lights in the city to 100 watts.

Councilmen estimate there are 140 400-watt lights now on city streets which might be reduced, bringing a marked saving in the amount of current consumed.

Council's determination to reduce city light bills is a part of its general economy program, resulting from its $12,000 reduction in general fund appropriations for 1941.

E. S. JUDY NAMED TO FILL SCHOOL POST AT PERRY

Edwin S. Judy, Laurelville, Route 1, has been employed by the Perry Township board of education as the new vocational agriculture teacher at the school.

Mr. Judy is replacing Cyril Moore, who received notice last week that he was to report for military duty on February 20. Friday will be Mr. Moore's last day at the school.

Mr. Judy, now working on a farm near Laurelville, received his training at Ohio State University. He has had ten years' teaching, seven in Coshocton County and three in Pleasantville schools, Fairfield County. He will begin teaching at the school next Monday.

Mr. Moore is the first school teacher in the county to be called into military service.

AT THE GRAND

Will Rock, the "Modern Monarch of Magic," is bringing his magic show to the Grand Theatre Thursday, February 13, matinee and night.

Mr. Rock is the owner of the "Thurston's Mysteries of India," a show with many surprises. Will Rock's program runs the gamut from sleight-of-hand to stage-size scenic and electrical effects. The acts presented are humorous and have their dramatic effect as well. At one moment he is serenely floating a woman over the heads of the audience, and the next he is making cards and coins slip in and out of his incredible fingers. Again, he recreates the atmosphere of the Arabian Nights with some amazing mystery of the Orient, to be followed with a hair-raising apparent materialization of Ghosts. Then shouts and gales of laughter as he plucks geese, ducks, rabbits and guinea pigs from the coast and hats of the audience.

Saturday proved a rough weather day for the Washington Township fox hunt, so some of the local hunters told us. Quite a number were in attendance for both the morning and afternoon drives, a fine dinner being served by the community's ladies in the school building at the noon hour. Eight foxes were sighted during the day but only one taken, that by Harold Pettibone. We have word from a reliable source that Scioto Township people are having a meeting this Monday evening to arrange for holding a hunt in the near future.

Our long while in service as township trustee here, Richard Hedges, is removing from the Renick Farm within the next few weeks and on Tuesday, February 25, will hold a close out public auction at the farm one mile north of South Bloomfield. For the last couple of years Mr. Hedges has been with the state highway department in maintenance supervision.

The household goods sale at the Cardwell home Saturday was well attended considering the weather. Prices ruled "fair." The Cardwell dwelling will be occupied sometime during the week by Charles Timmons and family removing here from Columbus, we are told.

"Some better" is the news we get from the not so well Henrys, Morris and Canter—both under the doctor's care. Nolo Gulick and wife will occupy the Lulu Garner apartment within a few days. The local school board will be in session at the school office Tuesday evening.

Camp Shelby William Bowers in the hospital there for a few days, is better and at his place in the band again. He has been promoted, he says, to a "first class private" whatever that is. Within the last few days, two car loads of seed peas have been received at the Crites cannery. Several hundred acres will be sown.

Here is one that slipped through a week ago but yet news: "The five daughters, Winona, Zora, Mary, Marjorie and Hazel were all at the home of their parents, Archie and Mrs. Peters, at St. Paul last Sunday." And another one that got past. "Charles and Paul Cromley, local cattle feeders, sold last Monday to David Davey 56 head of heifers and steers with an average weight of 900 pounds."

Mrs. Ada Smith and her two sons, Leland and Wendell, whose home until a few days ago was at north of Marcy territory, have removed to Union County near Marysville.

RED CROSS ROLL CALL PROVES TO BE SUCCESSFUL

With the annual Pickaway County Red Cross Roll Call declared to be a success, officials are thanking all who aided in the work of the county chapter. Although final figures are not being announced until the roll call is completed, officials say that the membership quota has been reached.

A complete report will be made in the near future. Work on and for Britain will be started as soon as the necessary material is received from National Red Cross.

$30,000 FIRE DESTROYS DRUGSTORE IN BUCYRUS

BUCYRUS, Feb. 10—An overheated furnace was blamed today for the $30,000 blaze which destroyed the Graetz and Foulke drug store in Bucyrus and seriously damaged the three-story building in which the store was located.

Bucyrus and Galion fire departments battled the blaze for five hours before bringing it under control. It was the second serious blaze in the community in a week. Last Monday a fire which swept the Kelly Vault Co., caused $100,000 damage.

NO MATTER how much you smoke, all that you get from a cigarette—all the flavor, mildness—you get it in the smoke itself. The smoke's the thing!

Science has told you Camels are slower-burning. This slower way of burning means more mildness, more coolness, more flavor in the smoke.

Now, these new independent tests reported above—tests of the brands that most of you probably smoke right now—drive home another advantage for you in slower-burning Camels—extra freedom from nicotine in the smoke.

Try slower-burning Camels. Smoke out the facts for yourself. Dealers everywhere feature Camels at attractive carton prices. For convenience—for economy—buy Camels by the carton.

Slower-burning... costlier tobaccos. Yes, slower-burning Camels give you a fuller measure of flavor without the harsh effects of excess heat... extra mildness, extra coolness, extra flavor—and less nicotine in the smoke.

$30,000 FIRE DESTROYS DRUGSTORE IN BUCYRUS

BUCYRUS, Feb. 10.—An overheated furnace was blamed today for the $30,000 blaze which destroyed the Graetz and Foulke drug store in Bucyrus and seriously damaged the three-story building in which the store was located.

Bucyrus and Gallon fire departments battled the blaze for five hours before bringing it under control. It was the second serious blaze in the community in a week. Last Monday a fire which swept the Kelly Vault Co., caused $100,000 damage.

REPENTANCE

THE age of miracles doesn't seem to be really ended. Nor the age of Godliness. Here is a little story which documents the statement.

The physical welfare supervisor of the Cleveland public schools received this letter the other day from a young man in Cincinnati:

"I am enclosing $1 to cover the admission price to ball games in which I slipped over the fence at Thomas Edison Field. I ask for forgiveness. I am a student at God's Bible School. I have been called to the Lord's service. I have a blessed peace in my soul, gentlemen. I have assurance of the saving power of God."

The sport supervisor read the letter twice, with great respect, and murmured, "Maybe he IS saved." He turned to the problem of restoring that repentant dollar to the fund where it belonged, but he couldn't trace the games and there seemed no way to do it. So he endorsed the money order to God's Bible School as a contribution from the Cleveland Senate high schools, and wrote the sender an appreciative letter.

And now nobody need be surprised if a lot of boys, and maybe even grown-ups, in Cleveland and Cincinnati, will quit trying to sneak into games over and under fences. Maybe they'll feel like quitting some other things, too.

FEEDING DEMOCRACY

PERHAPS Egon L. S. Hanfstaengl may be called an ex-Nazi. He is the American-born, 20-year-old son of Dr. Ernst Hanfstaengl who used to play the piano for Hitler and was for a while Nazi press chief. The father is now an exile from Germany and the son, a sophomore at Harvard, is a thorough-going American.

After five years in the Hitler Youth Movement, the young man says it is "swell" to be free from the "ideas which were on the way to making me a Hitler barbarian." He has enlisted in the U. S. Army air service and left college recently to go to camp. He thinks some American boys of his age don't appreciate democracy. He has no criticism for "sincere pacifists" but plenty for the fellows who never "give a thought to democracy and what it means."

"They don't seem to know what it's all about," he told an interviewer. "Democracy has to be fed, it doesn't go on by itself. It's unlike the dictatorships; to work, it must be the interest of all the people."

That is so true that it is trite, but it is too often ignored and neglected. And it should be in the "interest of all the people" all the time, not just during an emergency. If America gives up its "working

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

JAPANESE THREATENING

WASHINGTON—Public attention has been so closely riveted on the war in Europe and upon the Lease-Lend debate that alarming developments in the Far East have escaped almost unnoticed.

This is the fact that the Japanese are now within definite striking distance of Singapore and the Dutch East Indies; and that Berlin has been urging Japan to become the aggressor in the South Pacific in order to divert American attention away from Europe.

No one knows better than the German Foreign Office that the American people are skittish about having two oceans—both Atlantic and Pacific—churned up at once. So German attempts to persuade Japan to focus American attention on the Far East are nothing new.

Absolutely new, however, is the fact that the Japanese are in a much more strategic position to take over the Malays and the Dutch East Indies—two regions vital to the supply of American tin and rubber.

For what the Japanese very quietly have done is to occupy the powerful French naval bases of Saigon and Cap St. Jacques in French Indo-China.

In gauging possible war in the Pacific, one should remember that distance is all-important. A Japanese fleet cannot cross the Pacific to attack the United States without great risk, because of distance. Nor could it have attacked Singapore, previously, without grave risk, because the distance from there to Japan is almost as great as from Japan to Honolulu.

Now, however, with the French Indo-Chinese naval bases in her possession, Japan is in a far better position regarding Singapore and the Dutch East Indies than she would be regarding California if she occupied Hawaii.

It still will not be a walkaway for Japan to take these British and Dutch possessions, because they are well fortified. However, the job is now about 50 percent easier.

Strategy which U. S. naval experts expect Japan to follow is to begin the attack at the moment Hitler begins his long expected invasion of England.

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Tomorrow The Merry-Go-Round will describe what steps, if any, have been taken to safeguard American tin supplies in case the Dutch East Indies and British Malaya are conquered.)

BRITISH BILLS

Recent British statements regarding the difficulty of paying for American war supplies produced one repercussion that wasn't aired in the papers. Reading the news headlines, three Washington stationery dealers burst into the offices of the British Purchasing Mission, waving sheets of paper.

"I say—really—what's all the excitement about?" asked a bewildered official. The three callers confronted him with bills for stationery, ink, paper clips, etc., amounting to $7, $10 and $15.

"We want to render a statement for those supplies you bought from us," explained the callers.

democracy", no defense effort can save it. If the people steadfastly uphold it, the defense effort will be mightily strengthened.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By— Charles P. Stewart

UNCLE SAM'S and John Bull's interests are somewhat at odds relative to the matter of American exports to Russia—not only exports from the United States but also from the Latin republics to the south of us.

Russia's government being of a sort that we distinctly disapprove of, our Yankee policy has been considerably to restrict shipments, thither from our own ports; Latin are none of our business. Recently, however, our tendency has been to be rather more liberal than previously. For instance, a short time ago we released to the Soviet outfit a sizable order of airplanes that Moscow had been clamoring for. And other stuff is moving quite freely.

It isn't that we like the Communist regime any better than we did, but Comrade Stalin's game is to help China against the Japs, the Muscovites and Nippon being chronically unfriendly toward one another.

Well, all aid to the Chinese suits us admirably, because the more of it they get, the more they'll pre-occupy the Mikado, preventing him from bothering us, as undoubtedly he has an inclination to do if he can get the Asiatic mainlanders under subjection. We ourselves are doing our best, short of war, naturally, to assist Chiang

Kai-shek's cause, and it stands to reason that it's right down our alley to help Russia to help him also.

Paraphrasing, there's a deal of talk to the effect that Comrade Stalin, besides helping China against Japan, because he hates the latter, figures on communizing the Chinese presently. However, it isn't a certainty that he can do it. Chiang isn't a Communist. He wants to lick Japan and, of course, is glad of all the aid he can get, from whatever source, but he doesn't want his country to be communized afterward and probably will resist it when the time comes. Anyway, that's a future consideration.

STALLING JAPAN

No, we don't want China to be communized, but at this minute's juncture the main thing's to help Chiang, either directly or via Russia or both, not for China's self alone, but to stall off the Mikado from becoming a more active nuisance to Uncle Sam.

In itself this is alright with John Bull. Like us, it suits him to have a crimp thrown into Nippon, as an Axis nation. His diplomats have even made some tentative overtures to Moscow in the hope of splitting the Soviets off from their loose compact with Herr

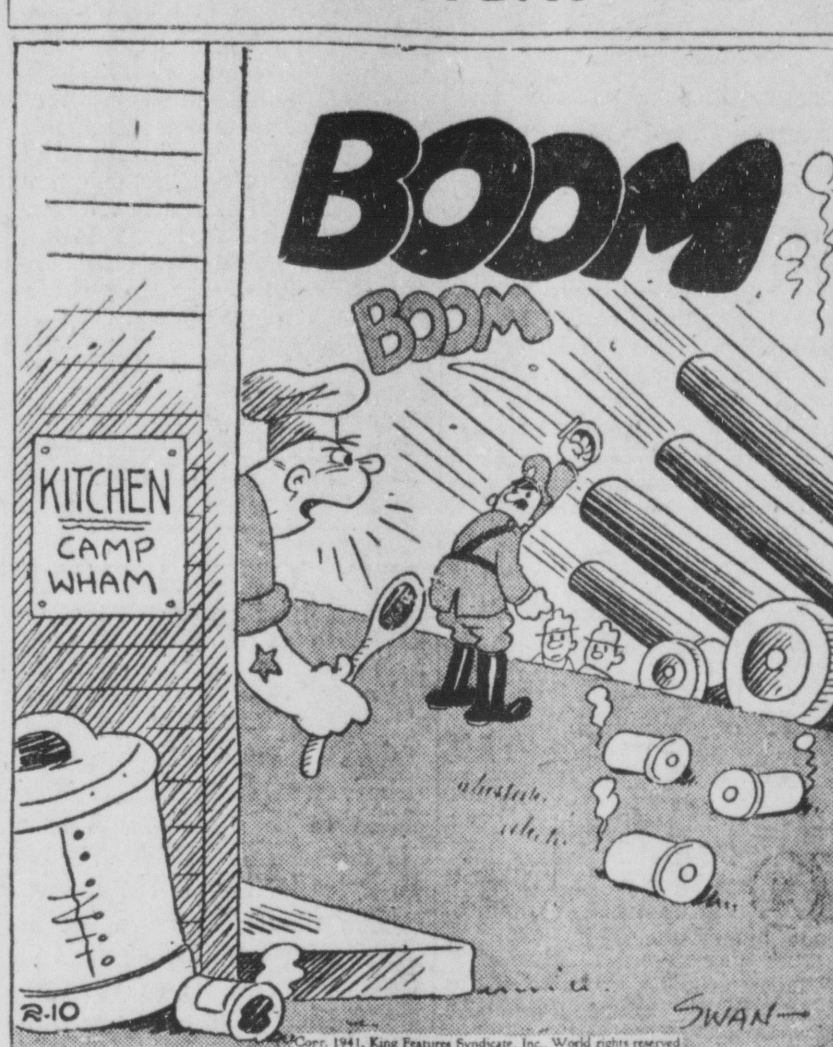

Hitler and collapsing Signor Mussolini. These overtures, though, haven't yet led to anything in particular. Meanwhile, Britain's of the opinion that the supplies we and the Latin Americas send to Russia simply are passed along to Comrade Stalin to fuel Hitler and Duce Mussolini. Maybe Joe Stalin does not wish Adolf and Benito a bit well in the long run. Maybe his basic idea is just to enable 'em to prolong the war until the entire aggregation of belligerents are flat on their backs, when, so it's suspected, he believes he can communitize 'em all while they're prostrate.

To head off this program, Britain holds that it's essential to terminate transpacific shipments from the Americas through Russia into Germany. John Bull's confident that he can attend to the Atlantic himself.

Lord Halifax, London's new ambassador in Washington, already has discussed the matter with State Secretary Hull. Secretary Hull's cogitating over it. It goes without saying that we want to bottle up any coze of supplies to the Nazis by way of Russia. Yet we certainly don't want to hamper Russian aid to China. It's a mean problem.

And as for the Latin republics' shipments?

Blood Examinations

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Several inquiries coming from readers have indicated that they have received reports of blood examinations but do not know what interpretation to put on them. I was surprised this week, for instance, to have an inquiry about the sedimentation rate of the blood, a very technical procedure. I will try, in a few articles this week, to describe in simple terms how blood examinations are made and what can be learned from them—and especially what cannot be learned from them.

To many people a "blood test" means the immunity reaction known as the Wasserman test. This is a reliable test for certain immune bodies in the blood but it is by no means even a small part of the things the doctor learns from the blood. Nor do I intend to discuss it further here.

In general, the blood is examined for six things: (1) The anatomical blood elements—white and red blood cells. (2) The amount of coloring matter—hemoglobin—in the blood. (3) Immune reactions for typhoid and many other infections. (4) Coagulation time. (5) Sedimentation rate. (6) Chemical composition.

Taking these in order: Examination for the red and white blood cells should be made in the routine of any examination. Every normal human being has exactly the same concentration of red and white blood cells, in every drop of blood. The fat and the thin, the pale and the ruddy, so long as they are normal, have all the same number per square inch.

Five Quarts in Normal Body

There are about five quarts of blood in the normal body—although this varies somewhat according to size and weight—so we each have exactly the same number of little red blood cells scurrying all over the premises, on their very necessary errands of usefulness and mercy. They are the freight cars that bring our body cells air and food and building blocks, and repairs and medicine and screen doors, and they remove the garbage and clean the streets, and we couldn't very well get along without them.

So they are very important members of the body physical and when they are reduced in number our sense of well being is greatly impaired. And they are frequently reduced—in the case of the red cells, this being called "anemia." So if a person is breathless, or has a sore tongue, or feels weak, or has no appetite—the symptoms of anemia are various—it is important to know how many of these citizens he is carrying. But this can be ascertained easily; is a regular method of examination in any doctor's office.

Sometimes they are increased in number though this is not nearly as common an occurrence as anemia and here, too, there are disagreeable sensations as if we had too many policemen and garbage removers and delivery trucks gumming up the streets and alleys and getting in each other's way.

Red Corpuscle Carries Oxygen Since each red corpuscle carries a definite amount of hemoglobin, which carries the oxygen to the cell—in health, the estimation of the hemoglobin is a rough index to the number of red cells. But this varies somewhat in different diseases and is useful as a matter of differential diagnosis of the anemias—a matter that can be well left to the experts.

Treatment of these conditions is simple and logical, once the true condition is known. The wonders of liver extract in anemia is one of the astonishing medical discoveries of all time. The use of iron has also been rediscovered for certain types of anemia and we now know how to give it. Some of the vitamins are also useful.

Counting the white corpuscles is equally valuable. They are increased, indicative of infections like appendicitis and pneumonia. But the discussion is somewhat too technical for an article of this kind.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clending has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Eczema," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dunlap celebrated their twentieth wedding anniversary with a dinner at their home in Williamsport. Mr. and Mrs. Orson King, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Foreman and Mr. and Mrs. Glenn I. Nickerson were included in the guests.

SYNOPSIS
BILL LATHAM, young novelist, is about to marry RITA LINWOOD, a local "butterfly". JOEL RANDALL, Bill's older cousin, and AUNT SALLIE RANDALL help him make his final preparations for the event.

YESTERDAY: They start for the church.

CHAPTER THREE

DOWN MAIN STREET, into Oak avenue, a short cut through Elm lane—and there was the church. Joel could see the late sun touching its ivy-covered walls to silver. There was a sort of gleam about it, as glimpsed through the huge and ancient trees that bordered the grass-grown ground surrounding it. Peaceful—quiet—like an old-fashioned painting; the sort he had often seen on the calendars the grocer, the butcher, or the electric light maker had given his Aunt Sallie at Christmas time. "Just to remind you, Mrs. Randall, that we still want your patronage."

And what a big part that church edifice had played in his life, Joel thought; in his, Bill's and Aunt Sallie's. He could remember how Bill had looked in the infant class. Hair slicked down, cheeks pink and shining, a small boy who was a bit too eager to show how well he could answer questions. Dramatizing the story of Daniel in the lions' den, putting an amazing lot of color into the one about David and his slingshot. Even that far back, Bill had possessed story telling ability. And how the small girls had admired him! Big-eyed, handsome, sure of himself; a pocket-edition Adonis; an abridged edition of Romeo; a miniature Sir Galahad!

The church plays, the Christmas cantatas, the Sunday school picnics, with Bill growing handsomer all the time, and more popular; being the hero of the plays, the most outstanding angel in the cantatas, and the life of the party at the picnics. Selling his first story, the one about life in a small-town church, and getting written up in the local paper. Winning a scenario writing contest, with a yarn about a string of pearls hidden in a church choir, depositing his thousand dollar check in the First National bank of Ardendale, and getting written up again; this time on the front page with headlines. Then the trip to South America, a trip made possible by part of the thousand dollars. "You can invest all you've got in the Randall Mills," he'd said to Joel. "Besides, I've got to see the world. Besides, I've got to get material for my next story. I can't go on forever writing about churches and small towns." And the return to Ardendale, the homecoming of the popular hero. And always the girls. Little, big, pretty, adoring; even the homely ones, dying to win a smile from the handsome hometown boy, and being a little pathetic when Bill forgot to notice them.

And now the church again. It was the setting for William Randall Latham's marriage to Rita Linwood. More color, more drama, more headlines in the paper. Bill, with gay banners flying, doing everything to the flare of trumpets. Or so it seemed to Joel. He found himself wondering just how Bill would take a setback of some sort, just how he would act if the banners were suddenly not there, nor the trumpets. But he would probably never know, since Bill appeared to be the sort of chap who went through life on wings of glamor and excitement. And—Joel grinned to himself as he thought this—and once he, Aunt Sallie, and Uncle John had been afraid that Bill would always be a sad and forlorn sort of person—morse, even maladjusted—because of his tragic death of his parents. They had been afraid that event would leave an indelible mark upon the life of William Randall Latham. How wrong they had been! How very, very wrong!

Joel slowed down the car as he reached the church, peering about for a parking space. It was practically impossible to find one. Every available inch of space seemed to have been taken. However, he finally squeezed his car in between Judge Powers' antique electric which Bill had nicknamed "Creeping Paralysis," and Mrs. Mayhew's awe-inspiring Rolls-Royce. Then he jumped out to open the door for Aunt Sallie. As he did so he remembered something else Bill had said. It was about Mrs. Mayhew's car. "Sure, it's a Rolls," he had said, "but it's not an English one. British cars all have a right-hand drive." His hearers had been impressed, just as Bill had known they would be.

Bill . . . Bill . . . Bill. Always able to hold the floor, always able to get attention—to grab off the spotlight. Sometimes intentionally, sometimes not. "Good heavens!" Aunt Sallie exclaimed. "I don't think anyone stayed at home!" "They've probably got the S. R. O. sign hanging out," said Bill. "What on earth's that?" Aunt Sallie wanted to know. "Standing room only," said Bill. Joel shrugged. More information from his handsome cousin. Boy, how he loved to dish it out! Bill brushed an imaginary bit of dust from his well-tailored lapel, and adjusted his high hat. Watching him, Joel thought there ought to be a movie camera around some place. The whole thing was rather like when Gene Raymond married Jeanette MacDonald. It certainly did smack of Hollywood.

"I'd say from all appearances," Bill remarked with a noticeable touch of pride, "that all of Ardendale had turned out."

"And why not?" said Joel. "You wouldn't expect anyone to miss seeing Ardendale's glamor boy marry Ardendale's most beautiful maiden, would you?"

"Nuts," said Bill. "And for Pete's sake give that hat of yours a more jaunty slant. You look more like an undertaker than a best man."

"Sorry," said Joel. "Don't forget it's my first high hat. I still feel as though I ought to step lightly while wearing it."

"So that's why you've been walking as though you were walking on eggs?"

"Boys, boys, boys!" Aunt Sallie cut in. "Come on. You wouldn't want to keep Rita waiting at the altar, would you?"

Joel locked the car door. Bill moved forward toward the narrow, grass-bordered walk that led back to the minister's study. Aunt Sallie was right behind him. He turned around and looked at her.

"Where do you think you're going, Aunt Sallie?" he asked. "Back to the study with you, of

The physical welfare supervisor of the Cleveland public schools received this letter the other day from a young man in Cincinnati:

"I am enclosing $1 to cover the admission price to ball games in which I slipped over the fence at Thomas Edison Field. I ask for forgiveness. I am a student at God's Bible School. I have been called to the Lord's service. I have a blessed peace in my soul, gentlemen. I have assurance of the saving power of God."

The sport supervisor read the letter twice, with great respect, and murmured, "Maybe he IS saved." He turned to the problem of restoring that repentant dollar to the fund where it belonged, but he couldn't trace the games and there seemed no way to do it. So he endorsed the money order to God's Bible School as a contribution from the Cleveland Senate high schools, and wrote the sender an appreciative letter.

And now nobody need be surprised if a lot of boys, and maybe even grown-ups, in Cleveland and Cincinnati, will quit trying to sneak into games over and under fences. Maybe they'll feel like quitting some other things, too.

FEEDING DEMOCRACY

PERHAPS Egon L. S. Hanfstaengl may be called an ex-Nazi. He is the American-born, 20-year-old son of Dr. Ernst Hanfstaengl who used to play the piano for Hitler and was for a while Nazi press chief. The father is now an exile from Germany and the son, a sophomore at Harvard, is a thorough-going American.

After five years in the Hitler Youth Movement, the young man says it is "swell" to be free from the "ideas which were on the way to making me a Hitler barbarian." He has enlisted in the U. S. Army air service and left college recently to go to camp. He thinks some American boys of his age don't appreciate democracy. He has no criticism for "sincere pacifists" but plenty for the fellows who never "give a thought to democracy and what it means."

"They don't seem to know what it's all about," he told an interviewer. "Democracy has to be fed, it doesn't go on by itself. It's unlike the dictatorships; to work, it must be the interest of all the people."

That is so true that it is trite, but it is too often ignored and neglected. And it should be in the "interest of all the people" all the time, not just during an emergency. If America gives up its "working

JAPANESE THREATENING

WASHINGTON—Public attention has been so closely riveted on the war in Europe and upon the Lease-Lend debate that alarming developments in the Far East have escaped almost unnoticed.

This is the fact that the Japanese are now within definite striking distance of Singapore and the Dutch East Indies; and that Berlin has been urging Japan to become the aggressor in the South Pacific in order to divert American attention away from Europe.

No one knows better than the German Foreign Office that the American people are skittish about having two oceans—both Atlantic and Pacific—churned up at once. So German attempts to persuade Japan to focus American attention on the Far East are nothing new.

Absolutely new, however, is the fact that the Japanese are in a much more strategic position to take over the Malays and the Dutch East Indies—two regions vital to the supply of American tin and rubber.

For what the Japanese very quietly have done is to occupy the powerful French naval bases of Saigon and Cap St. Jacques in French Indo-China.

In gauging possible war in the Pacific, one should remember that distance is all-important. A Japanese fleet cannot cross the Pacific to attack the United States without great risk, because of distance. Nor could it have attacked Singapore, previously, without grave risk, because the distance from there to Japan is almost as great as from Japan to Honolulu.

Now, however, with the French Indo-Chinese naval bases in her possession, Japan is in a far better position regarding Singapore and the Dutch East Indies than she would be regarding California if she occupied Hawaii.

It still will not be a walkaway for Japan to take these British and Dutch possessions, because they are well fortified. However, the job is now about 50 percent easier.

Strategy which U. S. naval experts expect Japan to follow is to begin the attack at the moment Hitler begins his long expected invasion of England.

(EDITOR'S NOTE—Tomorrow The Merry-Go-Round will describe what steps, if any, have been taken to safeguard American tin supplies in case the Dutch East Indies and British Malaya are conquered.)

BRITISH BILLS

Recent British statements regarding the difficulty of paying for American war supplies produced one repercussion that wasn't aired in the papers. Reading the news headlines, three Washington stationery dealers burst into the offices of the British Purchasing Mission, waving sheets of paper.

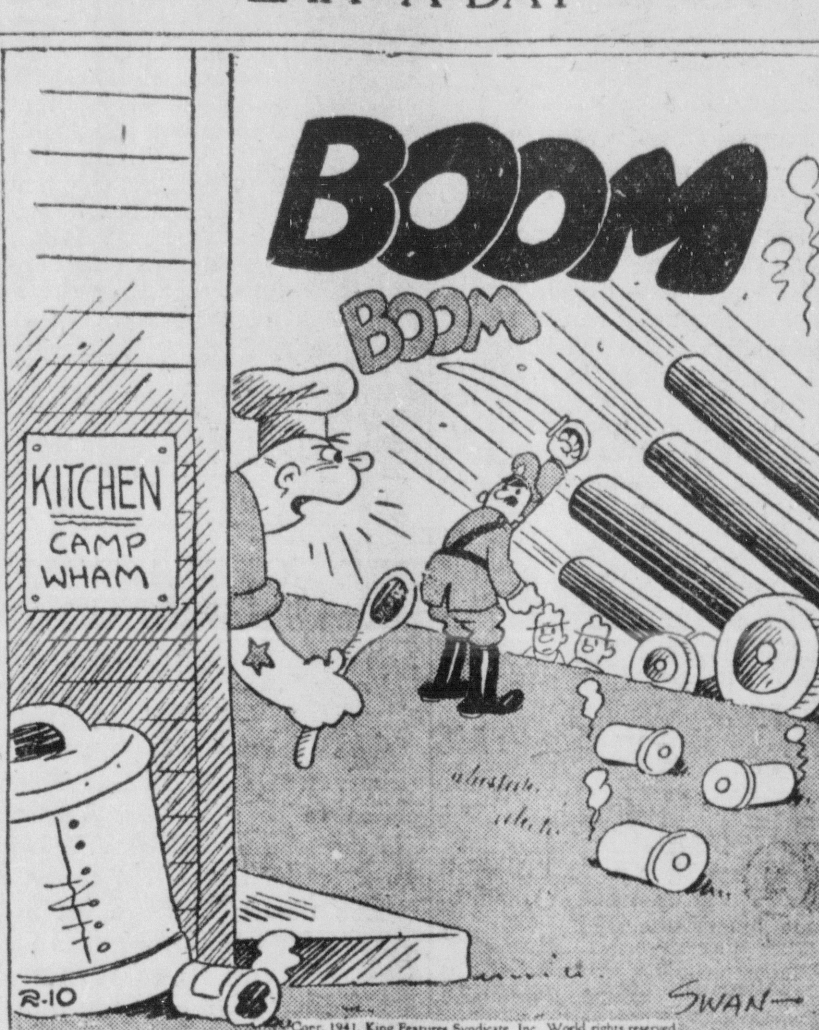

"I say—really—what's all the excitement about?" asked a bewildered official. The three callers confronted him with bills for stationery, ink, paper clips, etc., amounting to $7, $10 and $15.

"We want to render a statement for those supplies you bought from us," explained.

Blood Examinations

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Several inquiries coming from readers have indicated that they have received reports of blood examinations but do not know what interpretation to put on them. I was surprised this week, for instance, to have an inquiry about the sedimentation rate of the blood, a very technical procedure. I will try, in a few articles this week, to describe in simple terms how blood examinations are made and what can be learned from them—and especially what cannot be learned from them.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

To many people a "blood test" means the immunity reaction known as the Wasserman test. This is a reliable test for certain immune bodies in the blood but it is by no means even a small part of the things the doctor learns from the blood. Nor do I intend to discuss it further here.

In general, the blood is examined for six things:

- (1) The anatomical blood elements—white and red blood cells.
- (2) The amount of coloring matter—hemoglobin—in the blood.
- (3) Immune reactions for typhoid and many other infections.
- (4) Coagulation time.
- (5) Sedimentation rate.
- (6) Chemical composition.

Taking these in order: Examination for the red and white blood cells should be made in the routine of any examination. Every normal human being has exactly the same concentration of red and white blood cells, in every drop of blood. The fat and the thin, the pale and the ruddy, so long as they are normal, have all the same number per square inch.

Five Quarts in Normal Body

There are about five quarts of blood in the normal body—although this varies somewhat according to size and weight—so we each have exactly the same number of little red blood cells scurrying all over the premises, on their very necessary errands of usefulness and mercy. They are the freight cars that bring our body cells air and food and building blocks, and repairs and medicine and screen doors, and they remove the garbage and clean the streets, and we couldn't very well get along without them.

So they are very important members of the body physical and when they are reduced in number our sense of well being is greatly impaired. And they are frequently reduced—in the case of the red cells, this being called "anemia." So if a person is breathless, or has a sore tongue, or feels weak, or has no appetite—the symptoms of anemia are serious—it is important to know how many of these citizens he is carrying. But this can be ascertained easily; is a regular method of examination in any doctor's office.

Sometimes they are increased in number though this is not nearly as common an occurrence as anemia and here, too, there are disagreeable sensations and garbage removals and delivery trucks gumming up the streets and alleys and getting in each other's way.

Red Corpuscle Carries Oxygen

Since each red corpuscle carries a definite amount of hemoglobin, which carries the oxygen to the cell—in health, the estimation of the hemoglobin is a rough index to the number of red cells. But this varies somewhat in different diseases and is useful as a matter of differential diagnosis of the anemias—a matter that can be well left to the experts.

Treatment of these conditions is simple and logical, once the true condition is known. The wonders of liver extract in anemia is one of the astonishing medical discoveries of all time. The use of iron has also been rediscovered for certain types of anemia and we now know how to give it. Some of the vitamins are also useful.

Counting the white corpuscles is equally valuable. They are increased, indicative of infections like appendicitis and pneumonia. But the discussion is somewhat too technical for an article of this kind.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by mail. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Caring for the Hair and Skin," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

SYNOPSIS

BILL LATHAM, young novelist, is about to marry RITA LINWOOD, a local "butterfly". JOEL RANDALL, Bill's older cousin, and AUNT SALLIE RANDALL help him make his final preparations for the event.

YESTERDAY: They start for the church.

CHAPTER THREE

DOWN MAIN STREET, into Oak avenue, a short cut through Elm lane—and there was the church. Joel could see the late sun touching its ivy-covered walls to silver. There was a sort of gleam about it, as glimpsed through the huge and ancient trees that bordered the grass-grown ground surrounding it. Peaceful—quiet—like an old-fashioned painting; the sort he had often seen on the calendars the grocer, the butcher, or the electric light maker had given him. Aunt Sallie at Christmas time. "Just to remind you, Mrs. Randall, that we still want your patronage."

And what a big part that church edifice had played in his life, Joel thought; in his, Bill's and Aunt Sallie's. He could remember how Bill had looked in the infant class. Hair slicked down, cheeks pink and shining, a small boy who was a bit too eager to show how well he could answer questions. Dramatizing the story of Daniel in the lions' den, putting an amazing lot of color into the one about David and his slingshot. Even that far back, Bill had possessed story telling ability. And how the small girls had admired him! Big-eyed, handsome, sure of himself; a pocket-edition Aodons; an abridged edition of Romeo; a miniature Sir Galahad!

The church plays, the Christmas cantatas, the Sunday school picnics, with Bill growing handsomer all the time, and more popular; being the hero of the plays, the most outstanding angel in the cantatas, and the life of the party at the picnics. Selling his first story, the one about life in a small-town church, ari getting written up in the local paper. Winning a scenario writing contest, with a yarn about a string of pearls hidden in a church choir, depositing his thousand dollar check in the First National bank of Ardendale, and getting written up again; this time on the front page with headlines. Then the trip to South America, a trip made possible by part of the thousand dollars. "You can invest all you've got in the Randall Mills," he'd said to Joel, "but I've got to see the world. Besides, I'm going to get material for my next story. I can't go on forever writing about churches and small towns." And the return to Ardendale, the homecoming of the popular hero. And always the girls. Little, big, pretty, adoring; even the homely ones, dying to win a smile from the handsome hometown boy, and being a little pathetic when Bill forgot to notice them.

And now the church again. It was the setting for William Randall Latham's marriage to Rita Linwood. More color, more drama, more headlines in the paper. Bill, with gay banners flying, doing everything to the flare of trumpets. Or so it seemed to Joel. He found himself wondering just how Bill would take setback of some sort, just how he would act if the banners were suddenly not there, nor the trumpets. But he would probably never know, since Bill appeared to be the sort of chap who went through life on wings of glamor and excitement. And—Joel grinned to himself as he thought this—and once he, Aunt Sallie, and Uncle John had been afraid that Bill would always be a sad and forlorn sort of person—morose, even maladjusted—because of the tragic death of his parents. They had been afraid that event would leave an indelible mark upon the life of William Randall Latham. How wrong they had been! How very, very wrong!

Joel slowed down the car as he reached the church, peering about for a parking space. It was practically impossible to find one. Every available inch of space seemed to have been taken. In between Judge Powers' antique electric which Bill had nicknamed

"Shhhh!" cautioned Aunt Sallie. "They'll hear you in the church."

"Creeping Paralysis," and Mrs. Mayhew's awe-inspiring Rolla-Royce. Then he jumped out to open the door for Aunt Sallie. As he did so he remembered something else Bill had said. It was about Mrs. Mayhew's car. "Sure, it's a Rolls," he had said, "but it's not an English one. British cars all have a right-hand drive." His hearers had been impressed, just as Bill had known they would be.

Bill . . . Bill . . . Bill. Always able to hold the floor, always able to get attention—to grab off the spotlight. Sometimes intentionally, sometimes not.

"Good heavens!" Aunt Sallie exclaimed. "I don't think anyone stayed at home!"

"They've probably got the S. R. O. sign hanging out," said Bill. "What on earth's that?" Aunt Sallie wanted to know.

"Standing room only," said Bill. Joel shrugged. More information from his handsome cousin. Boy, how he loved to dish it out!

Bill brushed an imaginary bit of dust from his well-tailored lapel, and adjusted his high hat. Watch him, Joel thought there ought to be a movie camera around some place. The whole thing was rather like when Gene Raymond married Jeanette MacDonald. It certainly did smack of Hollywood.

"I'd say from all appearances," Bill remarked with a noticeable touch of pride, "that all of Ardendale had turned out."

"And why not?" said Joel. "You wouldn't expect anyone to miss seeing Ardendale's glamor boy marry Ardendale's most beautiful maiden, would you?"

"Nuts!" said Bill. "And for Pete's sake give that hat of yours a more jaunty slant. I still feel as though I ought to step lightly while wearing it."

"So that's why you've been walking as though you were walking on eggs," said Joel.

"Boys, boys, boys!" Aunt Sallie cut in. "Come on. You wouldn't want to keep Rita waiting at the altar, would you?"

Joel locked the car door.

Bill moved forward toward the narrow, grass-bordered walk that led back to the minister's study. Aunt Sallie was right behind him. He turned around and looked at her.

"Where do you think you're going, Aunt Sallie?" he asked.

"Back to the study with you, of course," came the quick reply.

"Listen, Aunt Sallie, I'm not six years old!" Bill said. "I don't need a nursemaid."

"I'm not so sure. Anyway, I'm going to see that you step out to meet Rita looking like a Randall ought to look."

"But I'm not a Randall!"

"Your mother was one. That makes you half. And since it's the first wedding in our family in Lord knows how long, I'm going to stick right with you until the last minute. I'm not going to have any more lost rings, or anything like that."

"Aunt Sallie, you're a stubborn, cantankerous old woman!" Bill said, half joking, half serious.

"Your place is in there in the pew reserved for the family. Now, go long with you!"

"I'll get my seat later. It'll keep."

Joel fell into step with them.

"That's right, Aunt Sallie," he said. "Your seat will keep. But I'm not so certain about Bill."

"What do you mean?" Bill demanded.

"Oh, there's many a slip, and all that sort of thing. I'm going to stand by, along with Aunt Sallie, to be sure you are turned over to Rita. Let her handle you from now on."

"You two talk as though I were something outlandish you wanted to get off your hands!"

"Now, Bill," said Joel. "It's not that, old man. It's just that we want to go through with the thing to the better end, now we've got this far."

"That's it, Bill. Joel and I want you to have a wonderful wedding, to—to—"

"To write about in your next book," said Joel. "Anything'll be a relief after all those divorces you've concocted."

"Bill gave Joel a quick look, and then turned on his heel.

"All right then, you two, come along," he said. "God knows what would happen to me if I were a niece instead of a nephew. . . ."

"I know one thing," said Aunt Sallie. "You'd be wearing your grandmother Randall's real lace wedding veil."

Bill groaned, and Joel chuckled.

"You'd look ducky," Joel said. "Just ducky."

"Listen, Joel," said Bill. "If we weren't down up, and if I wasn't about to be married, I'd black one of your eyes."

"Shhhh!" cautioned Aunt Sallie. "They'll hear you in the church."

"Let them!" said Bill.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

UNCLE SAM'S and John Bull's interests are somewhat at odds relative to the matter of American exports to Russia—not only exports from the United States but also from the Latin republics to the south of us.

Russia's government being of a sort that we distinctly disapprove of, our Yankee policy has been considerably to restrict shipments, thither from our own ports; Latin are none of our business. Recently, however, our tendency has been to be rather more liberal than previously. For instance, a short time ago we released to the Soviet outfit a sizable order of airplanes that Moscow had been clamoring for. And other stuff is moving quite freely.

It isn't that we like the Communist regime any better than we did, but Comrade Stalin's game is to help China against the Japs, the Muscovites and Nippon being chronically unfriendly toward one another.

Well, all aid to the Chinese suits us admirably, because the more of it they get, the more they'll preoccupy the Mikado, preventing him from bothering us, as undoubtedly he has an inclination to do if he can get the Asiatic mainlanders under subjection. We ourselves are doing our best, short of war, naturally, to assist Chiang

Kai-shek's cause, and it stands to reason that it's right down our alley to help Russia to help him also.

Parenthetically, there's a deal of talk to the effect that Comrade Stalin, besides helping China against Japan, because he hates the latter, figures on communizing the Chinese presently. However, it isn't a certainty that he can do it. Chiang isn't a Communist. He wants to lick Japan and, of course, is glad of all the aid he can get, from whatever source, but he doesn't want his country to be communized afterward and probably will resist it when the time comes. Anyway, that's a future consideration.

STALLING JAPAN

No, we don't want China to be communized, but at this minute's juncture the main thing's to help Chiang, either directly or via Russia or both, not for China's self alone, but to stall off the Mikado from becoming a more active nuisance to Uncle Samuel.

In itself this is alright with John Bull. Like us, it suits him to have a crimp thrown into Nippon, as an Axis nation. His diplomats have even made some tentative overtures to Moscow in the hope of splitting the Soviets off from their loose compact with Herr

Hitler and collapsing Signor Mussolini. These overtures, though, haven't yet led to anything in particular. Meanwhile, Britain's of the opinion that the supplies we and the Latin Americas send to Russia simply are passed along by Comrade Stalin to Fuehrer Hitler and Duce Mussolini. Maybe Joe Stalin does not wish Adolf and Benito a bit well in the long run. Maybe his basic idea is just to enable 'em to prolong the war until the entire aggregation of belligerents are flat on their backs, when, so it's suspected, he believes he can communize 'em all while they're prostrate.

To head off this program, Britain holds that it's essential to terminate transpacific shipments from the Americas through Russia into Germany. John Bull's confident that he can attend to the Atlantic himself.

Lord Halifax, London's new ambassador in Washington, already has discussed the matter with State Secretary Hull. Secretary Hull's cogitating over it. It goes without saying that we want to bottle up any ooze of supplies to the Nazis by way of Russia. Yet we certainly don't want to hamper Russian aid to China. It's a mean problem.

And as for the Latin republics' shipments?

You're Telling Me!

THAT THE pen continues to be mightier than the sword is ably demonstrated by some of the current Italian war department claims.

The British army is advancing through Libya so fast that Zedek Dumbkopf suggests they may be playing one-night stands.

A "magic eye" will aid umpires at the next national semi-pro tournament. Fans always have contended umpires could use another optic.

Grandpappy Jenkins says he'd like to write a poem about "peaceful spring," but the only words he can find to rhyme with "bloom" are "gloom," "zoom" and "boom"! How about Nazi "living room"?

Indiana university basketball star flunks in Roman history. Now, don't tell us it's possible he got his ancient and modern Caesars mixed!

The man at the next desk thinks spring is slightly overrated. While it's true that many fall in love at the time, he says, there are also others who get divorces during the season.

Folks in any office can tell when spring has arrived. The talk switches from high bowling scores to low golf cards.

The largest "trailer town" in the world, at Sarasota, Fla., has a 30-acre reservation with sewers, water, light and power connections, and a huge recreation hall.

The regular monthly teachers' meeting was held Tuesday, February 4 at 7:55 a. m.

The students enjoyed the sessions of the annual Farmers' Institute which they were permitted to attend.

Pupils Reading Circle Books have been purchased for the school and Supplementary readers have been added to the libraries of the first six grades.

The basketball team re-opened its season after a long layoff due to the epidemic of influenza which required postponement of two league games. The Warriors played the Perry Township team at Tarleton, Wednesday, January 22. The first game was between two Junior High teams and resulted in a victory for the Perry team.

The reserve game was a very close and exciting game throughout, with the lead changing several times, only to find the Warrior reserves on the short end of a 21-20 score. Don Waliser, Salt Creek forward, was the offensive star, dropping in 14 points for high score.

The Salt Creek Varsity hit full strike against the rangy Atlanta "five" and came out on top by the score 29-11. Jones and Spencer were the offensive threats for Salt Creek, scoring 20 points between them. They made 11 and 9 points respectively. Fred Cantor, new members of the squad, played fine ball and showed great possibilities for late-season play and the tournament. The postponed game with Washington was played Saturday, January 25. and well-played games. The Washington reserves finally downed the scrappy Salt Creek team by one point. The score was 10-11.

The Varsity game was equally exciting. The Salt Creek quintet saw its 13-6 half time advantage slowly dwindle away until the score stood even with one minute left to play. The Washington team made good a free throw in the last minute and went home victorious by a score of 20-21. Rife was high scorer for Washington, with 8 points. Nelson Jones continued to hit the basket consistently and led scoring for Salt Creek with 9 points. John Spencer was runner-up with 8 points. The ball handling and defensive play of Fred and Bob Canter were also outstanding.

The Warriors traveled to Darby Friday, January 31. The reserve game was a slow game with little offensive play being showed by either team. Salt Creek led at the half, 2-1, but lost the game by a score of 8-5.

The Varsity game was a well-played game by both teams. The Warriors led 17-8 at the half, but saw the lead diminish as two Salt Creek regulars, Fraunfelder and Fred Canter, were forced to leave the game because of fouls. The revamped line-up managed to hold the Darby team the remainder of the game, but lost by a score of 33-28.

Extra practice sessions have been scheduled in preparation for the County Tourney which is to be held the last of February. Salt Creek has three more games: Scioto at Tarleton, February 5; Jackson at Tarleton, February 12; and Centralia at Centralia, February 14.

At a meeting on January 28, the P. T. A. voted to purchase new jackets for the team.

John Jenkins, former Circleville High athlete, appeared in the lineup for the Camp Shelby All-Stars as they lost, 51-48, to the New York Celtics in a game played last week at Hattiesburg. . . . Jenkins played a guard for only a minute or two and didn't scoreThe All-Stars used 15 athletes, the game being a test to determine the best combination in the army camp

Delaware High has written to Circleville school authorities seeking a home and home cage schedule for next winter. . . . Delaware, when Circleville was one of its most interesting opponents always turning out a capable and sportsmanlike team

There's been a lot of publicity about Don Scott's efforts to enter the Army Air Corps, but little has been said about the fact that Charley Maag, Bill Nosker and Steve Andracko, also Buck gridders, have passed their tests for places in the Air Corps. . . .

GRIFFITH'S PRO LOOP TO EXPAND, PRESIDENT SAYS

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—Expansion of the American Football League was assured today with announcement by President W. D. Griffith that Detroit and possibly Philadelphia or Baltimore would be in the circuit next season.

Griffith said he would leave today for Detroit to discuss arrangements whereby the Michigan city eleven would take the field next fall.

Detroit, he explained, was given an option on entering next season because of difficulty in securing a home playing field. If necessary, however, the team can play all but three of its games on the road, Griffith asserted.

Action of the league's draft of college players was postponed at the annual meeting concluded yesterday in New York. This was done, the president explained, so that Philadelphia will have a chance to participate in the draft if the Quaker City enrolls in the circuit.

The professional league, formed last summer, embraces teams in New York, Boston, Buffalo, Cincinnati, Columbus, O., and Milwaukee, Wis., all of which were represented at the meeting.

EARLE MEADOWS AWARDED TROPHY AFTER VAULTING

BOSTON, Feb. 10—For his world-record shattering performance in the pole vault, Earle Meadows, 26-year-old Texan, today held the Hallahan Memorial Trophy as the star of the 52nd Boston Athletic Association track meet. Meadows, who hopes for a career as a radio singer, boosted the vault record to 14 feet 6½ inches at the Garden. He received 42 points in the balloting against 12 for Fred Wolcott who did the 45-yard high hurdles in 5.6 to break the oft-tied indoor world record, and 10 for Chuck Beetham who breezed the 600 in 1.12 for a new city record.

Leslie MacMitchell, New York University junior who won the Hunter Mile, won eight points, received a similar number.

SHEA WINS GOLF MATCH FOR BASEBALL PLAYERS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 10—Mervyn Shea, Detroit Tiger coach and former Chicago White Sox catcher, was the new golf champion among baseball men today following his victory over Lloyd Brown, former major league pitcher, in the finals of the sixth Annual Baseball Players' Links tournament.

Ohio Colleges Battling For Center Of Spotlight

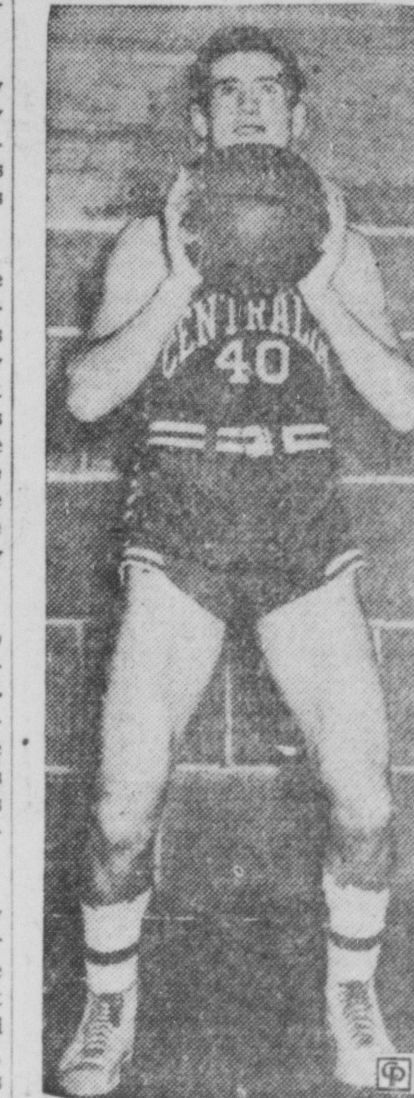

By Larry Newman

Mt. Union, Ohio University and Bob Gerber, eagle-eyed University of Toledo center, today battled for the spotlight in the Ohio collegiate basketball show after glittering performances staged before wildly-enthusiastic and partisan audiences.

The Mounts continued along the primrose path with 11 consecutive wins, five of them in Ohio Conference play. The Bobcats from Athens made their bid in a sparkling 48-45 win over the mighty Rockets of Toledo while Gerber raised his scoring total to 284 points with a 27-point spree as the Toledo five crushed Dayton, 56-39.

Gerber's sensational scoring mark against Dayton, plus an 18-point night against Ohio University, gave him a long lead over second-place Frankie Baumholtz who now has 247 tallies.

What a Cager!

MEET Dwight Eddleman, 18-year-old high school youth, who is challenging up a prep school basketball scoring record at Centralia, Ill., township high school. Eddleman already has scored 532 points this season, almost more than the complete point total of the team's opponents! In a recent game, he made 23 points, playing but the first and last quarters. The youth is six feet one and one-half inches tall and weighs 185 pounds. He is a high jumper on the track team, and has done six feet three.

Although the only unbeaten club in the state, the Purple Balders from Mt. Union are being hotly pressed by a plucky Ohio Northern team which has raced home in front in ten of 11 games against all opposition. The Polar Bears are likewise second in the conference race with a record of nine wins in 10 games while Wooster is in third position with five victories in six starts.

Rockets Play Five

Ohio University's victory over Toledo sent the Bobcat stock soaring, and Bill Trautwein's team must be reckoned with when time comes to hand out the laurels to the state champion. Harold Anderson's Toledo five performed the herculean task last week of winning four of five games and traveled nearly 1000 miles in the process. The Rockets whipped John Carroll at home, DePaul in Chicago, dropped the Bobcats at Athens then laced Dayton in the Flyer city.

Wooster, making a comeback after dropping tilts to Otterbein and Ohio Wesleyan, scored 117 points in whipping Bowling Green and Case, and the Mt. Union-Scot game a couple of weeks hence should prove the deciding factor in the conference race. Of course, Ohio Northern must be reckoned with but the Polar Bears' tight squeak with Capital bids trouble in the future.

Swinging into high-gear this week after a couple of weeks of exams and the usual "hull," the Buckeye cake fives will engage in 46 games during this week. Fourteen conference tilts are included in the lineup with the Wooster-Dennison game on Wednesday and the Mt. Union-Kent game at Kent on Thursday bidding for the headlines. The latter game might be the big upset the railbirds have been forecasting for the past weeks since Mt. Union's span of victories got under way.

10 OHIO SCHOOLS READY TO JOIN TOP CONFERENCE SPORTS LEAGUE

SPRINGFIELD, Feb. 10—Formation of a "Big Ten" Ohio High school basketball league neared completion today after coaches and athletic managers of the schools met in Springfield to iron out scheduling problems.

According to Elwood Pitzer, Springfield high school basketball coach, temporary chairman of the league, the following teams will join the new loop, Springfield, Portsmouth, Lima Central, Marion Harding, Dayton Roosevelt, Mansfield, Tiffin Columbian, Findlay and Lima South.

Formal ratification of the 1941-42 schedule will be completed at another meeting in Springfield next Sunday, Pitzer said.

LAWSON LITTLE WINNER IN TEXAS OPEN TOURNEY

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Feb. 10—Lawson Little, the National Open champion, added the Texas Open golf crown to his collection today, his 72-hole card of 273 in the $5,000 tournament giving him a three-stroke edge over Ben Hogan of White Plains, N. Y., the runnerup.

Hogan actually kept pace with the champion during yesterday's 36 holes, matching Little's 70-67—137 rounds of 68-69—137, but Little previously had gained a three-stroke advantage with a sensational 62 on Saturday. First money totaled $1,200, and Hogan collected $750 for second.

Other leaders and their winnings included: Sam Snead, Hot Springs, Va., 279 ($500); Clayton Heafner, Linville, N. C., 281 ($450); Jimmy Demaret, Houston, Texas, 282 ($325); Byron Nelson, Toledo, O., 282 ($325); Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa., 283 ($250); Johnny Dawson, Hollywood, Cal., 283 (high amateur); Lloyd Mangrum, Oak Park, Ill., 283 ($250); Craig Wood, Mamaronock, N. Y., 284 ($190), and Martin Pose Buenos Aires, 286 ($179).

DICK FISHER ON TOP CONFERENCE COURT SCORERS

COLUMBUS, Feb. 10—Dick Fisher, rugged Ohio State forward who watched the first half-dozen Buck cake games from the bench, today topped the Big Ten's individual scoring race with 89 points in seven conference games. The scintillating Fisher bagged 15 points as the unpredictable Bucks were whipping Iowa Saturday night, 49-44, to take the lead away from Wisconsin's Gene Englund, who was engaged in a non-league tilt with Butler. Englund has 77 points for six Big Ten frays.

The victory prolonged one of the oldest jinxes of the Iowa team. The Hawkeyes have not defeated an Ohio State basketball team in Columbus since 1923.

The defeat was a hard blow to the Iowans title chances. It dropped them from second spot to fifth with a record of three wins in five starts while Purdue moved into third behind Indiana and Wisconsin with four wins in six games. The loop leaders have each dropped a game.

RIFLEMEN BOOKED

Three matches between rifle teams in the Pickaway County Rifle and Pistol Club have been scheduled for this week. The So-hio oil team will shoot against the Allis-Chalmers team Thursday, Ralston-Purina rifle men will compete with Daily Herald rifle men and on Friday the Legion with the Grocers.

SHAW TO COACH AT NOTRE DAME, RUMORS INSIST

Santa Clara Mentor Quiet About Negotiations For Layden's Position

SCHOOL REMAINS SILENT

Board To Meet Tonight To Continue Discussion Of Successor

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 10—Lawrence T. "Buck" Shaw isn't talking, but it was reliably reported today he will be Notre Dame's next football coach if his terms are accepted.

The Santa Clara coach has established himself incommunicado in a hideout near his Palo Alto home. He did so to avoid making definite statements one way or the other about the possibility of his leaving the Broncos for South Bend.

It was not known if Shaw's salary demands exceed the $10,000 received by Elmer Layden who resigned the Irish mentorship to become czar of professional football.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Feb. 10—University of Notre Dame officials will meet for a second time tonight to discuss selection of an athletic director and head football coach to succeed Elmer Layden, who resigned the posts to become commissioner of the National Professional Football League.

The Rev. John Cavanaugh, C. S. C., vice president of Notre Dame and chairman of the Faculty Board in control of athletics, said today no candidate was decided on at last week's initial meeting of the board.

FULL SCHEDULE OF LOOP GAMES SET FOR BIG 10

CHICAGO, Feb. 10—The Big Ten basketball campaign enters on its final three weeks tonight with three games scheduled, including a meeting between the conference leader, Wisconsin, and Northwestern, one of the second division squads.

Other games tonight send second place Indiana against Iowa, and Illinois against the cellar-occupying Chicago Maroons.

The full conference will be represented on Saturday's schedule, and with such a complete turnout during this week it is likely Saturday night will find the standings well scrambled. Saturday's games are Illinois at Wisconsin, Purdue at Ohio State, Minnesota at Indiana, Northwestern at Chicago, and Michigan at Iowa.

Wisconsin, boasting five straight conference victories after an initial defeat by Minnesota, is favored to maintain its winning stride against the Wildcats. The Badgers demonstrated their ability over the week end, beating Butler on Saturday, 59-55.

Also on Saturday, Ohio State outlasted Iowa to win, 49-44, and Illinois fell a few notches in the standings by losing to Minnesota, 50-38, enabling the Gophers to climb into a third place tie with Purdue.

Purdue's chances of retaining its conference championship were believed to have suffered a setback Saturday when two Boilermaker reliables, Capt. Bog Igney and Don Blanken, were injured during Purdue's 48-36 win over Chicago. Both suffered leg sprains.

Ohio Colleges Battling For Center Of Spotlight

By Larry Newman

Mt. Union, Ohio University and Bob Gerber, eagle-eyed University of Toledo center, today battled for the spotlight in the Ohio collegiate basketball show after glittering performances staged before wildly-enthusiastic and partisan audiences.

The Mounts continued along the primrose path with 11 consecutive wins, five of them in Ohio Conference play. The Bobcats from Athens made their bid in a sparkling 48-45 win over the mighty Rockets of Toledo while Gerber raised his scoring total to 284 points with a 27-point spree as the Toledo five crushed Dayton, 56-39.

Gerber's sensational scoring mark against Dayton, plus an 18-point night against Ohio University, gave him a long lead over second-place Frankie Baumholtz who now has 247 tallies.

Although the only unbeaten club in the state, the Purple Balders from Mt. Union are being hotly pressed by a plucky Ohio Northern team which has raced home in front in ten of 11 games against all opposition. The Polar Bears are likewise second in the conference race with a record of nine wins in 10 games while Wooster is in third position with five victories in six starts.

Rockets Play Five

Ohio University's victory over Toledo sent the Bobcat stock soaring, and Bill Trautwein's team must be reckoned with when time comes to hand out the laurels to the state champion. Harold Anderson's Toledo five performed the herculean task last week of winning four of five games and traveled nearly 1000 miles in the process. The Rockets whipped John Carroll at home, DePaul in Chicago, dropped the Bobcats at Athens then laced Dayton in the Flyer city.

Wooster, making a comeback after dropping tilts to Otterbein and Ohio Wesleyan, scored 117 points in whipping Bowling Green and Case, and the Mt. Union-Scot game a couple of weeks hence should prove the deciding factor in the conference race. Of course, Ohio Northern must be reckoned with but the Polar Bears' tight squeak with Capital bids trouble in the future.

Swinging into high gear this week after a couple of weeks of exams and the usual "lull," the Buckeye cake fives will engage in 46 games during this week. Fourteen conference tilts are included in the lineup with the Wooster-Dennison game on Wednesday and the Mt. Union-Kent game at Kent on Thursday bidding for the headlines. The latter game might be the big upset the railbirds have been forecasting for the past weeks since Mt. Union's span of victories got under way.

10 OHIO SCHOOLS READY TO JOIN SPORTS LEAGUE

SPRINGFIELD, Feb. 10—Formation of a "Big Ten" Ohio High school basketball league neared completion today after coaches and athletic managers of the schools met in Springfield to iron out scheduling problems.

According to Elwood Pitzer, Springfield high school basketball coach, temporary chairman of the league, the following teams will join the new loop, Springfield, Portsmouth, Lima Central, Marion Harding, Dayton Roosevelt, Mansfield, Tiffin Columbian, Findlay and Lima South.

Formal ratification of the 1941-42 schedule will be completed at another meeting in Springfield next Sunday, Pitzer said.

LAWSON LITTLE WINNER IN TEXAS OPEN TOURNEY

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Feb. 10—Lawson Little, the National Open champion, added the Texas Open golf crown to his collection today, his 72-hole card of 273 in the $5,000 tournament giving him a three-stroke edge over Ben Hogan of White Plains, N. Y., the runnerup.

Hogan actually kept pace with the champion during yesterday's 36 holes, matching Little's 70-67—137 rounds of 68-69—137, but Little previously had gained his three-stroke advantage with a sensational 62 on Saturday. First money totaled $1,200, and Hogan collected $750 for second.

Other leaders and their winnings included: Sam Snead, Hot Springs, Va., 279 ($550); Clayton Heafner, Linville, N. C., 281 ($450); Jimmy Demaret, Houston, Texas, 282 ($325); Byron Nelson, Toledo, O., 282 ($325); Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa., 283 ($250); Johnny Dawson, Hollywood, Cal., 283 (high amateur); Lloyd Mangrum, Oak Park, Ill., 283 ($250); Craig Wood, Mamaroneck, N. Y., 284 ($190), and Martin Pose, Buenos Aires, 286 ($176).

SHAW TO COACH AT NOTRE DAME, RUMORS INSIST

Santa Clara Mentor Quiet About Negotiations For Layden's Position

SCHOOL REMAINS SILENT

Board To Meet Tonight To Continue Discussion Of Successor

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 10—Lawrence T. "Buck" Shaw isn't talking, but it was reliably reported today he will be Notre Dame's next football coach if his terms are accepted.

The Santa Clara coach has established himself incommunicado in a hideout near his Palo Alto home. He did so to avoid making definite statements one way or the other about the possibility of his leaving the Broncos for South Bend.

It was not known if Shaw's salary demands exceed the $10,000 received by Elmer Layden who resigned the Irish mentorship to become czar of professional football.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Feb. 10—University of Notre Dame officials will meet for a second time tonight to discuss selection of an athletic director and head football coach to succeed Elmer Layden, who resigned the posts to become commissioner of the National Professional Football League.

The Rev. John Cavanaugh, C. S. C., vice president of Notre Dame and chairman of the Faculty Board in control of athletics, said today no candidate was decided on at last week's initial meeting of the board.

FULL SCHEDULE OF LOOP GAMES SET FOR BIG 10

CHICAGO, Feb. 10—The Big Ten basketball campaign enters on its final three weeks tonight with three games scheduled, including a meeting between the conference leader, Wisconsin, and Northwestern, one of the second division squads.

Other games tonight send second place Indiana against Iowa, and Illinois against the cellar-occupying Chicago Maroons.

The full conference will be represented on Saturday's schedule, and with such a complete turnout during this week it is likely Saturday night will find the standings well scrambled. Saturday's games are Illinois at Wisconsin, Purdue at Ohio State, Minnesota at Indiana, Northwestern at Chicago, and Michigan at Iowa.

Wisconsin, boasting five straight conference victories after an initial defeat by Minnesota, is favored to maintain its winning stride against the Wildcats. The Badgers demonstrated their ability over the week end, beating Butler on Saturday, 59-55.

Also on Saturday, Ohio State outlasted Iowa to win, 49-44, and Illinois fell a few notches in the standings by losing to Minnesota, 50-38, enabling the Gophers to climb into a third place tie with Purdue.

Blosser Retires After Long Service On Bench

PETER BLOSSER

Judge Peter J. Blosser, for 12 years a judge of the fourth district Court of Appeals, retired Monday to private business and his farm interests in Pickaway and Ross Counties. Judge Blosser was succeeded by Verner E. Metcalf of Marietta on the three-judge court, which includes Judge Russell K. McCurdy of Portsmouth and Judge Roy J. Gillen of Wellston.

Judge Blosser has been one of Ross County's most eminent jurists since before the turn of the century. In 1920, he succeeded Judge John W. Goldsberry on the Common Pleas bench in Ross County, and served as Ross County prosecutor for eight years. As prosecutor he succeeded H. C. Claypool, who later entered congress, and who was the father of Congressman H. K. Claypool.

Judge Blosser now intends to reopen his office in the Union Block, Chillicothe.

He was graduated from Chillicothe high school, attended Eastman College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and received his law degree at the University of Michigan in 1898.

VAGABOND JAILED UNTIL ALL DETAILS CONCERNING BIG ESTATE ARE READY

STUEBENVILLE, Feb. 10.—Forty-three-year-old Frank Smith, a homeless vagabond for eight years, waited patiently today for his release from the Steubenville jail, so that he might claim a $25,000 estate left to him by an uncle in Kansas.

Smith was arrested and fingerprinted on a vagrancy charge, and after his release had been identified as the heir to a 450-acre farm near Topeka and other property. He returned to Steubenville from Columbus when he was shown an article saying his fingerprints had identified him as the heir.

Smith, who told police he already had gone through one $15,000 inheritance left him by his father, was lodged in the city prison until arrangements were completed.

NEWARK, Feb. 10.—Complications and shock resulting from a fall on the ice a few days ago were blamed today for the death of 71-year-old Frank Belmar, dean of Licking County printers and an employee of the Newark Advocate's composing room for 54 years.

The British official left the room and returned with three checks. "Most any bank will honor these checks, I am sure, gentlemen," he said cordially. "The war has set us back financially, but we're still able to pay for a $32 stationery bill."

LIQUIDATE THE H.O.C.

A penetrating illustration of the type of men being "drafted" as advisers on the Defense Commission is the confidential news letter circulated by Morton Bodfish, of the U. S. Savings and Loan League, now an adviser on defense housing.

Bodfish sends out a letter regularly to members of the mortgage and building loan business, and last summer quoted the following from the June, 1940, issue of Sphere, entitled "Are Democracies Decaying?"

"It was a sad day for republicanism when it was decided to elect the President by popular vote, and it was an even sadder day when the Constitution was amended to require election of senators by the same method. There is no man of sense, who knows his history, who will contend that mob government can for very long be good government. Democracy is mob government."

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Pretty, six-year-old Janelle Johnson, daughter of Representative Jed Johnson of Oklahoma, was overheard discussing "boy-friends" with a small playmate. "Heavens, Janelle," asked Mrs. Johnson, "I didn't know you had any boy-friends. Who are they?" Replied Janelle, "Well, my best boy-friend is Pweseident Roosevelt." . . . Able young Assistant General Matt McGuire is headed for a judicial appointment, probably the vacancy created by the recent retirement of Justice Peyton Gordon of the U. S. district court for the District of Columbia. . . House Foreign Affairs Chairman Sol Bloom is taking no chances of his files being rifled regarding the Lend-Lease bill. He has detectives guarding his office day and night.

Blosser Retires After Long Service On Bench

PETER BLOSSER

Judge Peter J. Blosser, for 12 years a judge of the fourth district Court of Appeals, retired Monday to private business and his farm interests in Pickaway and Ross Counties. Judge Blosser was succeeded by Verner E. Metcalf of Marietta on the three-judge court, which includes Judge Russell K. McCurdy of Portsmouth and Judge Roy J. Gillen of Wellston.

Judge Blosser has been one of Ross County's most eminent jurists since before the turn of the century. In 1920, he succeeded Judge John W. Goldsberry on the Common Pleas bench in Ross County, and served as Ross County prosecutor for eight years. As prosecutor he succeeded H. C. Claypool, who later entered congress, and who was the father of Congressman H. K. Claypool.

Judge Blosser now intends to reopen his office in the Union Block, Chillicothe.

He was graduated from Chillicothe high school, attended Eastman College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and received his law degree at the University of Michigan, in 1898.

VAGABOND JAILED UNTIL ALL DETAILS CONCERNING BIG ESTATE ARE READY

STUEBENVILLE, Feb. 10—Forty-three-year-old Frank Smith, a homeless vagabond for eight years, waited patiently today for his release from the Steubenville jail, so that he might claim a $25,000 estate left to him by an uncle in Kansas.

Smith was arrested and fingerprinted on a vagrancy charge, and after his release had been identified as the heir to a 480-acre farm near Topeka and other property. He returned to Steubenville from Columbus when he was shown an article saying his fingerprints had identified him as the heir.

Smith, who told police he already had gone through one $15,000 inheritance left him by his father, was lodged in the city prison until arrangements were completed.

FALL KILLS PRINTER

NEWARK, Feb. 10—Complications and shock resulting from a fall on the ice a few days ago were blamed today for the death of 71-year-old Frank Belmar, dean of Licking County printers and an employee of the Newark Advocate's composing room for 54 years.

FOX DRIVES NET ONE

Five fox drives in Washington Township Saturday netted one fox, Game Protector Clarence Francis reported. Two others were seen, but disappeared before any one could get a shot at them. Officer Francis said. About 75 men participated in the drives.

o'clock Friday and shall not be removed from the show room before 4 p. m. Saturday. All classes are open to residents of Pickaway County and any number of entries may be made by an exhibitor, but no farm or family will be entitled to more than one prize in any one class.

plained a spokesman for the excited trio. "We just heard Great Britain is bankrupt and we want our money."

The British official left the room and returned with three checks.

"Most any bank will honor these checks, I am sure, gentlemen," he said cordially. "The war has set us back financially, but we're still able to pay for a $32 stationery bill."

LIQUIDATE THE H.O.C.

A penetrating illustration of the type of men being "drafted" as advisers on the Defense Commission is the confidential news letter circulated by Morton Bodfish, of the U. S. Savings and Loan League, now an adviser on defense housing.

Bodfish sends out a letter regularly to members of the mortgage and building loan business, and last summer quoted the following from the June, 1940, issue of Sphere, entitled "Are Democracies Decaying?"

"It was a sad day for republicanism when it was decided to elect the President by popular vote, and it was an even sadder day when the Constitution was amended to require election of senators by the same method. There is no man of sense, who knows his history, who will contend that mob government can for very long be good government. Democracy is mob government."

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Pretty, six-year-old Janelle Johnson, daughter of Representative Jed Johnson of Oklahoma, was overheard discussing "boy-friends" with a small playmate. "Heavens, Janelle," asked Mrs. Johnson, "I didn't know you had any boy-friends. Who are they?" Replied Janelle, "Well, my best boy-friend is President Roosevelt." . . . Able young Assistant General Matt McGuire is headed for a judicial appointment, probably the vacancy created by the recent retirement of Justice Peyton Gordon of the U. S. district court for the District of Columbia. . . . House Foreign Affairs Chairman Sol Bloom is taking no chances of his files being rifled regarding the Lend-Lease bill. He has detectives guarding his office day and night.
